RANDOLPH.

Miss Maud Bloomingdale and Fred Beedle United in Marriage.

A quiet wedding took place on Saturday at 11 o'clock, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Beedle, when Fred Beedle, their only child, and Miss Maud Bloomingdale, both of Keene, N. H., were united in marriage by Rev. Fraser Metzger. The ceremony was witnessed by the immediate family only, and the bride, who was unattended, was gown in a light drab crepe-de-chene. Following the ceremony, a dainty wedding breakfast was served and the happy couple left at once for their home in Keene, N. H., which had previously been put in readiness by them. The bride's traveling suit was of dark blue serge, and a becoming hat to match. For many years the groom has been a successful business man of Keene, and a member of the orchestra formerly known as Beedle's orchestra, and in both of circles he has formed an extensive acquaintance, while the bride had been the popular and efficient librarian of the city library there for seven years, where she also has made many friends, who will unite with a large number here in extending the most hearty wishes for their future happiness in their home.

Miss Kittie Ripley went to Malden, Mass., Saturday, to work for the season.

Mrs. Elizabeth Lyman was in Barre as the over-Sunday guest of Miss Cora Holbrook.

The Rochester high school team was defeated by Randolph high at McCall Park, on Saturday afternoon, the score being 14 to 6.

Capt. J. E. Eldredge and Mrs. Eldredge left here Saturday morning for Highgate, where they will pass the summer in their cottage.

H. H. Howard is at the Mary Fletcher hospital in Burlington, and it was at this place instead of the Randolph sanitarium, that he was operated upon last week for hernia, and is thought to be making a good recovery.

MONTPELIER.

Pathfinder Car of Glidden Tour Arrived Here Last Night.

The Pathfinder car of the Glidden tour reached here last night about 8 o'clock. The car is a Stevens-Duryea, and in it were Samuel M. Butler, chairman of the contest board; Howard Longstreth, chairman of the touring board; E. L. Ferguson, starter, and Nathan Lazarek, the photographer. The party came from Springfield, Vt., to Montpelier and reported the roads fairly good, except in Williamstown, where they went into the mud to the hubs and nearly got stalled.

Ralph B. Denny has purchased the Montpelier house on Main street for $6,500.

A grass fire near the barn of C. C. Pierce called out the fire department Saturday afternoon, but the fire had been extinguished before the men arrived.

Thirty friends of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Scott surprised them Friday evening by gathering at their home to observe their wedding anniversary. Each guest carried a stick of wood and also left many gifts suitable to the occasion.

Mayor Ballard, Alderman Atherton and Superintendent of Streets Roberts have returned from Boston and vicinity, where they have been inspecting streets. They were taken over long stretches of road and gained much valuable information.

The union barbers and bosses have agreed on a one-year bill, which went into effect to-day. By it, the minimum wage scale is increased from $10 to $12 a week, and each journeyman is to have one-half day off each week, except when the week contains a legal holiday, in which case the whole day will be given. Every holiday shall be considered a working day, for which the journeyman shall receive full pay.

Miss Caroline Greenough, aged 16 years, died Friday at her home on Elm street after a long illness with tuberculosis. A sister, Bessie, died of the same disease last June. The deceased is survived by her parents, a sister and brother. The funeral was yesterday from St. Augustine's church, Rev. W. J. O'Sullivan officiating. The bearers were Arthur, Fred and Henry Doherty and Henry Heavey.

MUSICAL MOUNTAINS.

Singing Cliffs in the Pyrenees and Roaring Sands in Hawaii.

In certain parts of the world are mountains and hills which are said by the natives to sing. In the Pyrenees certain cliffs emit plaintive sounds resembling the strains of a harp. Two other cliffs in the same chain are called the "snores." When the wind is in the southwest they send forth a peculiar sound not altogether musical. The faces of these cliffs are marked by deep gullies, open in front, which may be compared to the pipes of an organ. At certain times a stratum of air, held between the cliffs and bordering trees, closes the openings while the wind blows freely between through the gullies, or organ pipes, behind; hence the music that is heard.

At the confluence of the Orinoco and the Rio Meta are granite cliffs which sing at sunrise. Humboldt refers to the phenomenon as the musical stones of the Orinoco. The music is caused by the rush of the expanding air through fissures partly closed by mica.

Many more examples might be cited to show that nature makes use of principles which have been adopted by man in the creation of musical sounds. Nor are the musical sounds of nature confined to rocks, mountains and hills, for in Hawaii is a sand bank fifty feet high which, when the hand is moved about in the loose sand, produces a sound like that of a melodeon. It is said that if the observer slides down the bank on his back, dragging both hands in the sand, the sound becomes as loud as faint thunder.—Harper's Weekly.

AN ILL MATED PAIR.

Wide Apart in Temperament Were Thomas and Jane Carlyle.

That the Carlyles were an ill assorted couple no one could deny. She was a highly strung, nervous woman, very quick, able and impatient, disappointed with her married life and her position, jealous of the admiration which Carlyle received at the hands of all his admirers, especially of one or two women, whom she found very unsympathetic.

That Carlyle adored her there is little doubt. He loved her with all the rough, passionate power of his nature, but he was a peasant in manner and character and lacking in all the little outward signs of devotion and affection which so many women exact and the absence of which they resent most bitterly.

Mrs. Carlyle found herself tied to an irritable genius who, sensitive at every point, deeply devoted to her, but absolutely incapable of translating that love into the language which she craved and longed for. I remember her once saying to me in a bitter way, "My dear, whatever you do, never marry a philosopher," and that was the key to the enigma—the woman always hungering for proofs of the devotion in which the whole of her daily life was wanting.—From Lady St. Helier's "Memories."

The Mistake.

In his biography of Alexandre Dumas Harry A. Spurr says that the imprudent French author, who hated avarice, was once waiting in line for his cloak at a soiree when he saw a millionaire give a tip of 50 centimes (10 cents) to the servant who handed out his palatol. Dumas, getting his cloak, threw down a 100 franc note. "Pardon, sir; you have made a mistake, I think," said the man, offering to return the note. "No, no, friend," answered Dumas, casting a disdainful glance at the millionaire; "it is the other gentleman who has made the mistake."

Shakespeare in France.

I once stumbled upon a choice bit of French quotation from Shakespeare. It was a tale by Uchard.

The distinguished author of this tale rendered "Fragility, thy name is woman," by "Fragilité, c'est le nom d'une femme" ("Fragility, that is the name of a woman").—Struss.

A Woman's Compliment.

"I admire your hair, dear."
"Thanks."
"But isn't it a good deal of trouble to find that peculiar shade in the shops?"—Washington Herald.
